

HOUSE STANDS PAT FOR JOHNSON RIDER

Instructs Conferees to Support Amendment to Abolish "Half-and-Half" Plan.

FAVORS GRANTING $50,000 TO EMERGENCY HOSPITAL

But $150,000 for Construction of Proposed Gallinger Hospital Is Voted Down.

The Johnson amendment to the District appropriation bill abolishing the half-and-half plan is exactly where it stood when the Senate first refused to agree to that violation of the organic act. In sending the District appropriation bill back to conference again late yesterday, the House instructed its conferees to support the Johnson amendment, and the matter is now backlocked between the Senate and the House.

Before curiously instructing the conferees on this vital point, the House accepted the Senate amendment to appropriate $50,000 for Emergency Hospital, the vote on Representative Little's motion to concur being carried by 196 to 107, despite the protests of Representative Page of North Carolina, in charge of the District bill, and Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the appropriations committee. Representative Fitzgerald, however, led the revolt against the appropriations committee, and expressed strong views on the subject of giving all the aid possible to Emergency Hospital.

The other important hospital item, that of $150,000 toward the construction of the proposed Gallinger Hospital, was refused by the House, after a curious division of members of the appropriations committee, by a vote of 202 to 38. This vote instructed the conferees not to agree to the Gallinger Hospital item.

Speaker Upholds Madden.

The point of order by Representative Madden against the legislation taking away from the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia the power of appointing members of the board of education, and giving that power to the Commissioners of the District, was upheld by Speaker Clark. This item was placed in the bill by the conferees without authority by either House, so there was no defense against Representative Madden under the rules of parliamentary practice. Representative Little, in charge of the bill, called attention to the fact that coupled with the legislation which Mr. Madden proposed was a clause authorizing the parents working in the District and living in Maryland to attend public schools free. He begged that the schools be withdrawn, but Representative Madden was obdurate, and the entire paragraph, with its proposed insertion, was knocked out.

In discussing the Senate amendment providing for $50,000 for the Emergency Hospital, Representative Page, opposing the item, said: "I have no feeling against this hospital. It has served the magnificent purpose in this city, but I do not believe it is good policy for the United States to contribute money to the construction and equipment of an institution over which it has no control."

In making an appeal to the House in favor of the Johnson amendment, Representative Underwood called attention to the fact that the Emergency Hospital exists through the active work of private citizens.

D. C. Government Pays the Money.

"The gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. Page, says we are going to take money out of the Treasury of the United States," exclaimed Mr. Underwood. "This is not the government of the United States paying this $50,000. It is the government of the District of Columbia."

"It is true that under the arrangement with the District of Columbia, the government of the United States some of that money actually does come out of the Treasury of the United States, but that is not the proposition. This is an effort to secure appropriation from the District of Columbia for a great charitable purpose."

"This is an effort to secure appropriation from the District of Columbia for a great charitable purpose, and the government of the United States is now asked to contribute out of its public funds a portion of the money that private charity has contributed to take care of the wounded and unfortunate. As a matter of fact, it might be well if the District of Columbia paid every dollar for the maintenance of this Emergency Hospital that will be conducted and run by private charity in the future; but here you are facing an emergency. This session of Congress is about to close. The credit of these good women is exhausted when they have raised an additional $100,000 to commence the operation of this new hospital. They must have that relief, and they are asking that the District of Columbia out of its public funds contribute one-half of what they are themselves prepared to contribute."

"Why, I hardly know of a city in this country where the city government is not willing to contribute to good charities in emergencies of this kind. They do in my city, and I have heard they do in your city. Why should we attempt to treat the people of the District of Columbia, because they may be orphan children in the government of the United States, in a different way from that in which our own people act at home? I am not in favor of increasing appropriations, and I have made an earnest effort to hold them down, but this is a governmental necessity. There is no greater charity than that of when a stricken man falls by the wayside and his friends do not about him, his home perhaps a thousand miles away, than to have an ambulance come to his assistance and whether he has a dollar or whether he has not, carry him to a place where his life can be saved and he may be nursed back to health and happiness for his family."

Opposed by Mr. Sisson.

Representative Gillett of Massachusetts, ranking republican on the appropriations committee, also supported the emergency hospital item, as well as Representative Harrison of Mississippi. Representative Sisson opposed this appropriation and said in his speech: "The federal government should divorce itself from all the sectarian institutions to which they are now appropriating money."

"There is not a man on your subcommittee, there is not a man, so far as I know, on the committee on appropriations. I doubt whether there is one in this House, who would not be more than glad to see proper hospital facilities here. Now, this hospital is to receive $50,000. It was not contemplated at the time this charter was granted. It was not contemplated at the time the building was constructed, but when they say 'Congress for the first $50,000, after Congress bought the lot for $30,000, or whatever it did pay for it, it was thought that the $50,000 would be enough, with what they would be able to raise, to build and equip this hospital.'"

Reasons for Opposition.

Representative Fitzgerald made the motion to instruct the conferees not to agree to the Gallinger Hospital item. He made three points against it. The first one was against using the name of any living man active in political life; second, that the Treasury of the United States is in too weak a condition to make the expenditure, and, third, that the present policy pursued in the District in caring for the indigent sick is satisfactory. He said that Congress had appropriated up to $2,500,000 for the aid of private institutions, and if the Gallinger Hospital is started, the money previously spent by the government would be wasted in his opinion. Representative Foster of Illinois, a physician, also opposed the Gallinger Hospital item.

"It looks well," he said, "and to talk about it sounds well, but I submit that there could be given no better care to indigent patients than now received in the Garfield Hospital, the Homeopathic Hospital, the Sibley Hospital, the Georgetown Hospital, the Emergency Hospital, the Providence Hospital, the Children's Hospital, or any other institution in this city. I am not supporting Mr. Fitzgerald, speaking against the Gallinger Hospital. Representative Sisson, however, the man who has led the recent fight against the appropriations to institutions, called attention to the fact that the most economical proposition for which the government could appropriate.

Support Gallinger Hospital.

Support for the amendment came also from Representative Mann of Illinois, who called attention to the tremendous sums that are being spent by the government in other parts of the country for humane purposes. Representative Page, chairman of the committee in charge of the bill, and chairman of the conference committee of the House on the bill, urged that he be not instructed to refuse the item. Representative Underwood, in this instance, however, stood up for the Gallinger Hospital item, declaring that it would be the most economical proposition for which the government could appropriate.

Representative Johnson of Kentucky offered his amendment to instruct the conferees from the House to support his amendment affecting the "half-and-half" plan. The amendment was agreed to without a roll call vote, and the District appropriation bill went back to conference.

SOUP KITCHEN SUCCESS.

Opened in Connection With Penny Luncheon in John Marshall Place.

Supt. Herbert S. Kline of the Gospel Mission reports progress with the newly opened soup kitchen at the penny luncheon, 214 John Marshall place. At this kitchen the poor of Washington can get a quart of beef stew, three boiled potatoes and a loaf of bread for 10 cents.

Although in the few days that it has been opened it has not been overcrowded, Supt. Kline says he believes that the growth of the kitchen is only a matter of time. "It will be a natural growth," he asserted today. "The only publicity it has been receiving is through the press, and you know many of our people are not so much interested in a matter of time. The superintendent believes patrons of the kitchen will increase until it is a natural process it will be serving as many as it can. The kitchen was the idea of Mr. Kline."
